Schools should not be vaccination or clinic sites. Vaccines need to be given in a medical setting with the ability to handle severe reactions, keep proper medical records, and obtain informed consent, including the right to exemptions. People need to be able to hold them liable for failures.

Do you support Supervisor Heinz's apparent view that the unvaccinated should be charged with murder if someone dies of measles? Vaccinated people can also transmit measles. People who choose to forgo a medical procedure because they judge risk to be greater than benefit to them, or for other reason, are perfectly within their rights. It is unethical, akin to assault and battery, to force them.
