Arizona Board of Regents, The University of Arizona

Project Title/Description:

Applied Academic Public Health Partnership

Purpose:

The Pima County Health Department (PCHD) is building on their existing Academic Health Department relationship with the University of Arizona to create a postdoctoral position embedded within the health department. This doctoral level data scientist was embedded within PCHD but benefitted from supervision from faculty in the Epidemiology program who have worked in applied public health research and prevention projects. Faculty provided mentorship and guidance to the post-doctoral fellow and graduate students working with the PCHD.

Amendment #1 is a no-cost extension of the subrecipient agreement due to the grant being extended.

Procurement Method:

This Subrecipient Agreement is a non-Procurement contract and not subject to Procurement rules.

Program Goals/Predicted Outcomes:

The rapid rate of change in the science of disease transmission, vaccines, testing strategies, infection prevention, short and long-term sequelae, and consequences associated with mitigation warrants consistent review of the literature, data monitoring and assessment. Merging various PCHD data sources, such as testing, vaccine, and case investigation databases can help assist PCHD in evidence based decision making. Faculty, postdocs and students from the University of Arizona's Department of Epidemiology and Biostatistics can identify points of efficiency in merging data streams and formulate statistical analysis plans to answer applied public health questions on behalf of PCHD. In addition, rapid reviews of the literature will inform best practices to implement programs to address gaps identified.

Public Benefit:

Communicable diseases have disproportionately affected populations placed at higher risk and who are medically underserved, including racial and ethnic minority groups, and people living in rural communities who are at higher risk of exposure, infection, hospitalization, and mortality. Additionally, racial and ethnic minority groups and people living in rural communities have disproportionate rates of chronic diseases that increase the severity of infection and might experience barriers to accessing testing, treatment, or vaccination. This grant funded subrecipient agreement allows the PCHD to expand their relationship with the University of Arizona to reinforce their outreach to disadvantaged populations by improving their capacity for research and data analysis.

Metrics Available to Measure Performance:

- A public health scientist from the U of A will be embedded within PCHD.
- Establishment of an academic-applied public health working group.
- Establish standard operating procedures for data pulls and analyses that involve combining data across PCHD databases to assist health officials with decision making.
- Rapid literature reviews to inform best practices and policies.
- Efficiencies identified in report generation across databases.

Retroactive:

Yes. This subrecipient agreement expired May 31, 2023. If not approved, PCHD will not be able to continue to fund the University's engagement in this program.
