Tucson Second Chance Community Bail Fund, already exists and posts bonds for predominantly minority criminals who are unable to afford bail while they await trial. Why does Pima County need an in-house program for this? Stop spending money on the things that are already funded by someone else.

Pima County needs to be tougher on crimes which involve victims instead of establishing a "catch and release" system for non-violent criminal offenses. Crime in Pima County has been rising substantially and this stands to make it even worse. It is time to stand up for the taxpayers.

Quit letting criminals out of jail. If they are caught committing a crime, they go to jail. If they are giving bail but can't afford the bond, they stay in jail. Why is this such a hard concept? If they can't do the time, they shouldn't do the crime. If we refuse to prosecute crime, don't be surprised when crime increases.
