15. Opposing Executive Overreach

RESOLUTION NO. 2025 - 52, of the Board of Supervisors, opposing executive overreach, supporting the U.S. Constitution, and defending our democracy. (District 3)

It would be in the citizens best interest to follow the constitution of the USA and the State of Arizona in all county dealings, and stop worrying so much about what the president is doing.

The only real change is the flow of money to support illegal immigration that has all but ended.

I get tired of you bashing the president and his policies. Work on making Pima County safe and prosperous for all legal residents.

"It is a mistake to assert that Donald Trump is the first US president to violate the Constitution. Before Trump, Biden in many ways arguably set the bar for Constitutional violations. This has been a problem with many US presidents, notably and sharply increasing after September 11th, 2001 beginning with George W. Bush and continuing with Barack Obama. Indeed, the executive actions in toto of each of these post-9/11 presidents is worth some consideration: Bush, Obama, Trump, and Biden. (Not that Wikipedia isn't a virtual brothel of Intelligence activity, but in this case it will suffice). One might even argue that the overall trend in abuse of executive powers between presidents shows a pattern of co-ordination which makes them more similar to each other than different, regardless of party affiliation."
