

Chuck Bowden interpreted the mountains and desert that surround us with a strong and persuasive voice. That voice could be abrasive, yet often eloquent, always thought provoking, and continues today as a call to action. His pleas for wildness and wilderness will long continue to influence man's appreciation for, and protection of the Sonoran Desert and the Catalina Mountains which rise above it.

Mervin W. Larson, Director Emeritus, Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum

APR 06 15PM 1129 PC CLK OF RD

APR