Re: Consent Calendar Item #3 on the June 4, 2019 Board of Supervisors Agenda – Town of Oro Valley Intergovernmental Agreement for Oro Valley Innovation Labs (OVIL) Funding and transition to a University of Arizona Center for Innovation – Oro Valley

The biotechnology or bioscience industry is a major high tech employer in Pima County. This industry develops, compounds and other treatment protocols that can be used to address a range of issues in health care, crop production and agriculture, non-food uses of crops, and development of biodegradable and other environmental uses. The University of Arizona has been a leader in biotechnology experimentation and intellectual property creation including immunotherapy and a wide range of products that have been successfully utilized globally. The Bio5 Institute is an excellent example of cross discipline collaboration with game changing outcome.

This regional expertise has enabled the attraction and growth of world-wide research companies such as Ventana Medical Systems (now Roche Ventana), Sanofi (now IcoGen), as well as Accelerate, a tenant in the County owned Herbert K. Abrams building. Combined with the University programs and a number of other smaller companies, southern Arizona has become a bioscience cluster.

This industry has the highest average employee pay in the state of Arizona and one of the highest in the nation. It is important that our region continue to provide support in order for southern Arizona to become a magnet for bioscience companies. With the amount of research at The University of Arizona and many of the other Bioscience companies in the area, there is a need to provide an ecosystem where the developers of intellectual properties and innovative products have support at all levels from startups through the attraction of major biotechnology employers, academia, and investors.

Expansion of this industry is also a critical component of the Pima County Economic Development Plan. A number of community members and those involved in biotechnology, bioscience and pharmacy are working to advance development of a bioscience/biotechnology incubator in the Oro Valley area, near existing major bioscience employers within Oro Valley.

Based on industry experience there is significant demand for such an incubator in the Oro Valley area. It has been proposed that a 4000 square foot incubator be constructed by a local developer and leased to a non-profit operator with 3 years of free rent and a gradually increasing rent over the next 7 years. The Town of Oro Valley recognizing the importance of attracting primary export based employers has agreed to contribute $10,000 this fiscal year and $50,000 next fiscal year in advancing the incubator. With the Board's approval, the County would match these funds through an Intergovernmental Agreement (IGA) with the Town of Oro Valley for economic development purposes. These funds together with other funding sources are available to construct a small incubator and begin operation of the facility.

Recently the founders of the incubator concept formed the Oro Valley Innovation Labs of which I am a Board Member. Over the years, there has been a great deal of discussion with regard to university participation in such an incubator. In fact, in an earlier concept version of an Oro Valley incubator, Arizona State University was to be a prime sponsor. Recently a decision has been made that the major operating partner of the incubator will be the Campus Research Corporation who also operates the University of Arizona Tech Park at Rita Road. Given the University's activities in bioscience through Bio5, the College of Pharmacy, and the College of Medicine, it is believed that an Oro Valley incubator will be highly successful, hence my confidence in investing in this venture.

The Campus Research Park Board of Directors recently approved a proposal to accept the offer of the non-profit Oro Valley Innovation Labs to operate the 4000 square foot incubator as the University of Arizona Center for Innovation – Oro Valley.

If approved by the Board, Pima County will contribute through an IGA with Oro Valley, $10,000 this fiscal year and $50,000 next fiscal year from Economic Development revenues, in support of other community partners including Venture West, Roche Ventana, Icogen, the Town of Oro Valley and the University of Arizona. The commitment of these partners and others will provide the catalyst to advance this badly needed Center for Innovation.

I recommend the Board approve the Intergovernmental Agreement with the Town of Oro Valley for Biotechnology Development Collaboration.
